The Constitutional Amendment [art. IX, § 7(d), Florida Constitution] passed in 2002 established the Board of Governors and transferred to it the responsibility to “operate, regulate, control, and be fully responsible for the management of the whole university system.” The curriculum of the universities is unquestionably one of the central means by which they are controlled, operated, and managed; and thus, issues revolving around it are clearly within the authority of the Board of Governors rather than the Legislature.
